

ABSTRACT

A porous body composed of base particles adhering to one another with an adhesion material having a lower melting point than the melting point of the 5 base particle, the porous body employing a method for producing the porous body including a mixing step for mixing the base particles and the adhesion material, and a heating step for heating the mixture which is obtained by the mixing step still in a state being in a container.